What to Watch for (Catalysts):

1. It's finally time to WORRY about politics. As we have said in these reports before, if Trump were to catch up in the polls the stock market would have to rethink its assumption that Hillary would win the White House. Markets don't like to rethink assumptions. This typically leads to a short term decline in the market.
2. WORRY about what the Federal Reserve. Fed governors are out in force trying to convince the world that the Fed is serious about raising rates. Higher rates cause concern for bonds and stocks.

The Key: Our Macro-VIX Indicator popped up briefly to 65 out of 100 indicating there is concern in the markets

Drivers in the Market

- Fed speak on Monday by Lockhart, Kashkari, and Brainard (all doves). This is the last time we will hear from Fed speakers before the Sept 20-21 Fed meeting at which rates will be raised – or left alone.
- Weekly jobless claims on Thursday along with the Producer Price Index. Friday brings the Consumer Price Index and the Baker Hughes oil rig count
- Thursday Oracle reports earnings (expected $.54)

Buy:

September is often full of volatility. Any sell-off is an opportunity to buy some great growth stocks at cheaper prices, such as UA, ULTA, FB, AMZN, and NVDA.

Disclosures: *Warren Financial has long positions in some of the stocks mentioned in this article both for our clients and our own portfolios. We may be starting new long positions in some of these companies in the future. The fact that a company is mentioned is not a recommendation or offer to buy or sell that stock or bond. Investors should always seek advice from an advisor that knows their particular financial situation and not assume that general information such as the information in this article will always apply directly to their portfolio.
